Waste district considering a facility along Tyson Road

By BAILEY CLINE The Commercial Review

Jay County Solid Waste District is looking at building a facility along Tyson Road.

Jay County Commissioners signed a letter of intent Monday to send to Portland Economic Development Corporation regarding a 75-acre parcel on the southwest side of Portland, just west of Tyson Foods and Community Fiber Solutions.

Commissioner Rex Journay explained Jay County Solid Waste Management District director George

McGinnis, Jay County Solid Waste Management District education director Bettie Jacobs and himself approached Portland Economic Development Corporation about potentially granting the dis-trict up to 10 acres of the land to be used for constructing a new building.

The proposed facility would replace the district's current building at 5948 W. Indiana 67, rural Portland. That building is leased from Waste Management, which operates Jay County Landfill. A new facility would allow for more space, including a recycling center.

Unemployment is 3.8%

By RAY COONEY

The Commercial Review

Unemployment ticked back down in March after consecutive months of increases saw the area hit its highest rates in years.

According to estimates released Monday by Indiana Department of Workforce Development, Jay County posted an unemployment rate of 3.8% in March.

The rate was down 0.3 percentage points from February after it had gone up a combined 1.5 percentage points the previous two months. It was still 0.3 percentage points higher than in March 2023.

Jay County's rate of 4.1% in February marked the first time it had reached 4% or higher since September 2020 following the spike related to more Hoosiers employed in of the Indiana economy." coronavirus

Ordinance

Continued from page 1 Gillette presented the council with a list of similarly sized cities and their salaries for department superintendents and laborers. Superintendents on his list it included Upland, Churubusco, French Lick and Monon, among others - range from about $48,000 to nearly $75,000, with laborers between $43,000 and $48,000.

(He quoted averages of $62,156 for superintendents and $45,532 for laborers.)

He proposed a 20% pay increase.

'We still wouldn't even be close to the $62,000," Gillette said, estimating it would move the city's employees to $52,000 for superintendents and $40,144 for laborers.

He said those raises would fit within his department's 2024 budget.

Farmer added his feeling that all after-hours calls a half. He also advocated for raises in general.

"Albany's park splash pad (employees) make he said. "That is more than my lowest guy. That's not right."

Dunkirk Mayor Jack Robbins explained that the city council could look at such raises through the budget process, which typically begins in June. Gillette pushed back, asking why such changes would have to wait.

Watson, a former mayor, reiterated the need for the council to look at the proposal rather than making an immediate decision.

"We need to discuss it, and I think the best time for us to discuss it is while we're doing budg-ets," said Watson. "It's not just your department.

•Canceled its May 27 meeting, which would have fallen on Memorial Day.

•Repealed its COVID-19 policy.

•Approved up to $300 from the mayor's promotional fund for attendance at the Jay County Community Awards on May 11. Robbins is nominated for the Dunkirk Community Commitment Award.

•Approved the following: hiring JL Brooks Painting of Indianapolis to paint the interior of the city building, including filling cracks and other fixes, for $7,950 (the city is also getting a quote for a new front door for the city building); payment of $7,102.20 to Best Way for removal of debris from a house that was damaged by fire on "We need to look at all Main Street and the forpark caretaker's paying and $241,717.65 in claims.

•Heard from Revolt that trail work to finish the loop around Dunkirk City Park is underway. She also said an issue with restroom lights in the park has been repaired and that the park board plans to spruce up landscaping.

•Received a thank you letter from Dunkirk Public Library for sponsoring its summer reading program.

•Heard from Robbins that he is considering a recommendation to add a full-time "float" employee for the city who could assist with mowing, park work and other duties on an as-needed basis.

•Learned from Farmer that the city will be flushing fire hydrants next week. He also cautioned that some residents may see discolored water as the new Ag Best CountryMark is being hooked up to water lines on Thursday and Friday.

Unemployment

Rust denied hearing

By WHITNEY DOWNARD Indiana Capital Chronicle

indianacapitalchronicle.com The Indiana Supreme Court denied U.S. Senate candidate John Rust a rehearing in a case to determine his eligibility for the Republican primary ballot. Previously. the justices stayed a lower court ruling that booted Rust from the ballot. Rust wants to challenge Congressman Jim Banks for the GOP U.S. Senate nomination but a state law requires a candidate's two most recent primary votes align with their preferred party — a bar Rust doesn't meet.

Rust voted Republican in 2016 and Democrat in 2012. The law allows an exception, should the county's party chair grant it.

Pole hit

Damage is estimated between $10,000 and $25,000 after an Ohio man lost control of his vehicle, causing him to crash into a utility pole on county road 300 North about 1 a.m. Tuesday.

Reese M. Gross, 18, Coldwater, was driving his 2013 Acura TSX east on the road when he drove off the shoulder of the road. He swerved back onto the road, causing him to lose control and strike a pole on the other side of the road.

The pole is registered to Jay County REMC. Gross sustained a minor leg injury from the incident.

Sounds echo in street

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I live in a lovely older neighborhood and have enjoyed wonderful neighbors over many years. The homes are close together with windows often left open in spring, summer and fall, as large shade trees keep our homes cool.

A couple of years ago, our longtime next-door neighbors moved, and a new neighbor, a single woman, moved in. She was quiet, and we would occasionally visit in the yard.

Well, over the last few months, a "problem" has developed. This neighbor has a new male friend who is there much of the time. Since the new friend's arrival, loud moaning sounds frequently emanate from her home.

It quickly went from a bit funny to shocking to annoying. It's unbelievable how loud and prolonged the moaning sounds are, the "Oh, Gods," the slapping and spanking sounds, not to mention the frequent back-to-back sessions.

Other neighbors hear it and have commented, so it's not just we who are offended. One neighbor thought someone was in distress and almost called the police until another neighbor told her what it was. It has awakened us and kept us up at night.

Also of concern is that there are small children among our nearest neighbors.

Abby, is there anything you can suggest I do so our neighbor keeps her private business private without embarrassing or offending her? I would sure like to put an end to the auditory assault. – KEPT AWAKE IN OHIO

DEAR KEPT AWAKE: Approach your neighbor privately and inform her that the sounds of her lovemaking are creating a disturbance not only for you, but also for the other neighbors. Tell her that one of them nearly called the cops, but someone was able to stop the person. Then suggest that when she entertains her gentleman caller, they close the windows, because not only are people scandalized, but there are children who can hear what's going on. Then cross your fingers.

abated, DO inform the authorities. Perhaps they can be more persuasive.

DEAR ABBY: I've been 90069.

married to my husband for 40 (long) years. Whenever I do something wrong, I get a note on the kitchen counter. This has gone on for years and years.

This is the note I woke up to this morning. "Why did you leave the light on in the garage? To burn it out to see what I would do? I will do nothing except go to the garage in daylight." He always makes it seem like I purposely do things. I'm tired of being treated like this. What is his problem? — NOTES IN THE EAST

DEAR NOTES: I will you have assume addressed this directly with your husband. For whatever reason, he is hesitant to communicate with you face-toface, which is why he resorts to notes on the kitchen counter. of Instead openly expressing his annoyance, he expresses it indirectly, which is the definition of passiveaggression.

Let loved ones know they matter

Editor's note: This column was originally printed on April 21, 2021. A year later, it was reprinted following Jack's death. It seems a good reminder to revisit year after year. We urge you to follow its advice.

By JACK RONALD The New and Sun

Don't wait.

Don't wait until someone is gone before expressing how much they mean to you.

That's the lesson driven home over the past month.

Melodi Haley was my classmate. She was my friend. And in the words of many of my contemporaries, she was the glue that held us all together.

Every high school graduating class is different. Some go their separate ways minutes after that tassel is moved from one side of the mortarboard to the other.

Others stay connected.

I'm lucky enough to say mine stayed connected.

And Melodi was the primary reason for that.

She's the one who cajoled committees together for reunion after reunion. She's the one who corralled us for monthly luncheons before COVID-19 set in. She's the one who carried a magic wand that could turn the biggest slacker into the busiest volunteer. That last one I know for sure. I was the slacker, and Melodi put me to work on projects I never would have dreamed of taking on.

There was something about the word "no" that didn't work when she asked you to help.

We lost Melodi this month. And by the word "we," I mean the Portland High School Class of 1966, the farming community she served for years at Harvestland Coop in Geneva, the folks at Jay County Retirement Center, her co-workers at Adams Physical Therapy and her fellow members of the congregation at Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church.

And more.

I've lost track of how long Melodi had been dealing with cancer. She'd fight it. She'd beat it. Then it would turn 180 degrees and she'd be fighting it again.

But a funny thing happened.

When most of us might have felt sorry for ourselves, Melodi decided her mission was to offer advice and support and hope to others facing the same affliction. Ask around and you'll find folks she reached out to, setting aside her own battle to provide encouragement to others in theirs.

The best thing I've done in 2021 and the best thing I've done in a long while was to let her know while she was still alive — how much I admired her.

In other words, I didn't wait. A couple of months ago, when it was clear that her situation was dire, I sent her an email.

Words may not be sufficient. But sometimes they are all we have:

Melodi,

I'm not at all happy about the news I hear coming from 910 S. Vine St.

The best thing I've done in 2021 and the best thing I've done in a long while was to let her know — while she was still alive — how much I admired her.

(Anonymous) has been in touch.

First, it was to let me know about his situation. Then it was to fill me in on yours.

Neither one qualified as good news.

Connie and I have been optimistic about both of you.

So this is discouraging.

But here's something worth remembering:

A lot of folks stumble through life without much of a clue.

And then there are others, others whose lives make a difference, others who matter. You matter. You have mattered.

It may have been with your smile. It may have been with your laughter. It may have been with your leadership.

But there is no doubt, you matter. You have mattered.

Not everyone can say that. Actually, few can say that.

But you matter. And you continue to matter to your friends, your family and your classmates. So keep that in mind.

When the night seems long and dawn seems far away, remember this: You have mattered.

Love,

Jack and Connie

Insufficient? Probably. But my advice is still this: Don't wait.

Questions went to wrong place

To the editor:

This letter is refer-enced to The Commercial Review's coverage of the April 15 Common Council of the City of Port-land meeting where a representative of the Portland Police Department addressed the turnover problems of that department.

He referenced the key problem was "compensa-tion." Why he was questioning the common council is beyond me. He should have questioned the following:

•Mayor of the City of Portland

•Clerk-treasurer of the City of Portland

•Chief of the Portland Police Department

The mayor of the City of Portland is the head of the Board of Works and Public Safety. Reference to "Indiana Code 36-8-3-3. Organization of safety appointment, boards; numbers, and compensapolice officers firefighters, and other officials; division of city into precincts and districts; authority of chiefs." Refer to subsection (d). Clerk-treasurer of the City of Portland (Indiana Code 36-4-10-4.5 Third class cities; fiscal officer; duties) subsection (6) Prepare for the legislative body the budget estimates of miscellaneous revenue, financial statements, and the proposed tax rate. Chief of police department is charged with submitting the upcoming budget for his department with recommendations to the board of public works and submitting his recommendations for his employees of the department police upcoming salary. Please reference Indiana Code 36-4-7 City Budget Procedures and Compensation of Officers and Employees refer to IC 36-4-7-6 Budget estimates; formulation procedure also IC 36-4-7-7 Report of estimates; ordinance fixing taxation rate; appropriation and IC 36-4-7-10 Preparation of budgets; contents; submission to legislative body.

As stated above, I think that maybe the people concerned about their compensation should address the people that make the recommendations of their salary. The legislative body is limited to approving the budget as presented but only can increase it only on the approval of the city executive.

Longevity pay — The clerk-treasurer in 2022 submitted INPRS (controls the police and firefighters pensions) a longevity pay of $1,080, then in 2023 it was lowered back to $840. Why? Maybe the officers should keep better track of the clerk-treasurer never heard of the lab. through the local pension board with better control. Informational report from INPRS for the certified salary report that was published through the Fraternal Order of Police Indiana State Lodge stated the highest longevity was submitted from the Shelbyville Police Department of $21,588.03. Mishawaka Police Department paid no longevity but had a base certified salary of $89,000. Portland's longevity is $840 this is third from the bottom of INPRS departments. Reference to internal issues, this is not a problem, only if you let it be, remember that there is no "I" in team. Before I finish this letter I would like to see the fire department brought back in line (salary) with the police department. This is another way that the city keeps everyone divided.

Broken systems brings surprises

BV NEDRA RHONE The Atlanta Journal-Constitution

ical billing can also make it hard to recognize a billing issue. If patients manage to wade through the web of codes and costs to discover something is wrong, they certainly will have to expend a lot more time and energy trying to find a resolution.

Remember that a lot of the division is from the top down.

Thank you, Robert E. Moore Portland

For the next hour, I logged in and out of my ID theft protection services. I've signed up for several over the past few years, courtesy of various companies trying to atone for numerous data breaches that exposed customers' personal information. Seeing nothing suspicious, I tried to focus on other things and enjoy the last few days of vacation. But the mysterious bill still nagged at me.

When I returned home, the envelope was waiting. I ripped it open and learned the $258.68 bill was for services that had been performed by my medical provider in January 2023. Surprise! Or rather, surprise billing.

This isn't a bill that would bankrupt me, fortunately, but I wondered why on earth I was receiving an invoice for services performed 15 months ago.

No claims from the company were shown in the explanation of benefits (EOB) from my insurance provider for the date of service. In fact, there was no mention of this company anywhere in my medical records.

So, I called the physician who provided the service.

The assistant who answered the phone advised me not to pay the bill, saying the lab has made a practice of unbundling services then billing patients for tests that already had been paid for at the contracted rate by insurance companies.

The assistant also said the physician no longer works with the lab and that, if I receive another bill, I should tell the company to contact the physician's office directly.

I'm not alone when it comes to being confused by the medical bills generated by America's patchwork health care system. It's hard to imagine that the lab's billing practices, as described by the office assistant, is above board. But, honestly, who can tell?

Clinical lab tests are at the top of the chart when it comes to consumers' ongoing concerns about surprise bills, according to some industry reports.

Was the lab breaking up services into multiple codes for higher reimbursement? Was it also upcoding, or using more specialized codes than needed? Was the lab trying to get away with billing me for services never performed, also known as phantom billing? Or did the employees simply make a mistake?

I may never know the answer, but I do know we need more transparency in medical billing.

In a study by the Federal Reserve five years ago, more than 20% of American adults reported that they had received major, unexpected medical bills. Unexpected bills can take many forms, but some of the most expensive come from out-of-network providers whose services are contracted by in-network providers. Patients are not aware that they were even receiving out-of-network services until the bill comes.

The lack of transparency in med-

Many people know how to fight a mechanic or a contractor if they've been billed twice or didn't get the services they paid for. Few of us are skilled at fighting the medical bureaucracy. At the moments when we are sometimes most vulnerable, we may choose not to wage war.

The problem is so pervasive that it actuallv forced bipartisanship in Washington. The No Surprise Billing Act went into effect Jan. 1, 2022. That helped, but the issue is ongoing.

"Evidence shows the laws are having the intended effect," said Liz Coyle, executive director of Georgia Watch, where staff has seen a reduction in calls related to surprise bills. "But that doesn't mean there might not still be bills sent in error." And that doesn't mean there won't be companies breaking the law, she said. Under the law, out-of-network providers can't bill patients for costs above the negotiated rate from insurance companies when patients are treated for emergency services or non-emergency services at in-network facilities. The health care provider and health insurance plan must negotiate payment through an independent dispute-resolution process. A Georgia law offers similar protections.

"Medical billing is just so complicated, and the federal law doesn't cover everything," said local patient advocate Cindi Gatton.

In short, the laws to end surprise medical billing haven't ended it. But, in a broken health care system like ours, that's hardly a surprise.

Former President Donald Trump, second left, appears in Manhattan Criminal Court in New York City on Monday for opening statements in his trial for allegedly covering up hush money payments. Trump faces 34 felony counts of falsifying business records in the first of his criminal cases to go to trial.

Prosecutors allege a scheme to defraud the 2016 electorate

By MOLLY CRANE-NEWMAN and JOSEPHINE STRATMAN New York Daily News

Tribune News Service

NEW YORK — Donald Trump schemed to defraud the 2016 electorate and covered up the plot by lying "over and over and over again" once he won the White House, prosecutors charged Monday during opening statements at the former president's hush money trial.

The ruse central to the first-ever criminal case against an ex-U.S. president started with "three men in a room" at Trump Tower in August 2015, Assistant District Attorney Matthew Colangelo said in Manhattan Supreme Court: Trump, his convicted former fixer, Michael Cohen, and David Pecker, the former CEO of American Media, the parent company of The National Enquirer.

The trio sought to influence the results of the election by paying off

Playboy model Karen McDougal and a Trump Tower doorman — all of whom had unflattering information to share about Trump — Colangelo said.

"This case is about a criminal conspiracy and a cover-up," the prosecutor added. "The defendant, Donald Trump, orchestrated a criminal scheme to corrupt the 2016 presidential election. Then he covered up the criminal conspiracy by lying in his New York state business records over and over and over again."

To ensure nothing would get in the way of Trump becoming the leader of the free world, Pecker agreed to be his campaign's "eyes and ears" by using publisher AMI's network of sources to "catch and kill" stories that could harm his chances, Colangelo alleged. Pecker allegedly reported tips to Cohen, who helped facilitate payments to anyone with dirt on his boss.

Pecker further saw to it that posiporn star Stormy Daniels, former tive stories were published about about sexual assault.

Trump and negative pieces about his competitors, the jury heard. The hit pieces included claims that Texas Sen. Ted Cruz had ties to JFK's assassination.

Trump and his associates followed "through on every aspect of this scheme," the prosecutor said, and the candidate was kept closely in the loop as The Enquirer "ran headline after headline that extolled the defendant's virtues." Colangelo said jurors will review a mountain of evidence, including a "flurry of text messages" among the scheme's architects, and hear a phone call between Cohen and Trump.

The former president and presumptive Republican presidential nominee stewed at the defense table when Colangelo turned to the infamous "Access Hollywood" tape, the release of which, the prosecutor said, led to great concern it would "irreparably damage" Trump's standing with voters for "bragging"

Continued from page 1 Journay noted the board agreed to donate a portion of the parcel to the county subject to it conducting a wetlands survey on the entire 75 acres and contributing all associated costs, as well as paying for closing costs and recording fees. (Jay County Solid Waste Management District has agreed to cover those charges, Journay added.)

"I think it's a great opportunity for the county because that site would go very well out there," he said.

County attorney Wes Schemenaur noted the letter, which is non-binding, would commit the county to conduct a wetlands survey — the facility can't be placed on or within so many feet of a designated wetland area and a land survey to determine where to place the building. "I agree with Rex, I think it's a good deal for the county," he said.

Also Monday, commissioners approved an inter-local agreement with Portland covering various topics.

The agreement outlines the following:

•Portland may haul vegetative debris to the highway department for disposal.

•Jay County will mow along areas of Pearl Street, Tyson Road, Boundary Pike, River Road and along the banks of the Salamonia River east of Wayne Street within city limits

•Portland will snow plow and salt the following roads: Tyson Road from Charles Street to Indiana 67; Seventh Street/100 South from Blaine Pike to Indiana 67; county road 200 West from Tyson Road to Red Gold in rural Portland; Blaine Pike from Portland city limits to county road 200 South; the entirety of county road 150 South: Court Street in day's newspaper.

Commissioners sign interlocal agreement with Portland between Main and Walnut streets in Portland.

•Jay County will snow plow and salt county road 100 North from Morton Street to U.S. 27.

•Portland will provide trash collection for Jay County Courthouse, the Community Resource Center and Jay County Health Department at no cost to the county.

•Jay County will allow storage of sand, sandbags and related equipment at Jay County Highway Department for flooding events. Both entities will alternate in providing sand for use in filling the bags.

Schemenaur explained that county and city officials met last week to discuss a potential agreement for issues involving street care.

"We all want to help each other out," said Aker. "They're going to help us, and we're going to help them. It's going to be beneficial to both of us, and like I said, I'm just glad to see us working together on this."

Commissioners approved the resolution, which will move next to Portland Board of Works in May.

Four years ago, when the Trump administration threatened to ban TikTok in the U.S., its Chinese parent company ByteDance Ltd. worked out a preliminary deal to sell the short video app's business. Not this time.

Once again, the U.S. government is aiming to shut down TikTok unless it's divested from Beijing-based ByteDance. But the company has made clear it has no intention of selling. Indeed, TikTok's management vowed in an internal memo to staff "we will move to the courts for a legal challenge" if the bill winding its way through Congress is signed into law.

That sets the stage for a watershed legal battle like Temu and other combetween the U.S. government and the offspring of a $240 billion startup that's may follow suit to ban Tikcome to define China's growing technological mus- a domino effect.'

And it's a test of how Beijing will respond to growing pressure on homegrown champions from ByteDance to Huawei Technologies Co. The proposed bill in fact deliberately calls out the potential to circumscribe apps from countries that count as foreign adversaries.

"It's not just TikTok, since we saw the U.S. also took actions before against Huawei and now hundreds of Chinese companies are under U.S. sanctions," said Wu Xinbo, a director at Fudan University's Center for American Studies. Continued from page 8 The first inning looked similar to Friday's loss to Madison-Grant, with Mady Fraley grounding out to shortstop, Mallory Winner lining out to second base and Riah Champ grounding out to third base. Wapahani's Zoey Koger only needed seven pitches to put down the three Patriot sluggers in short order.

In the next three innings, the Patriots (5-1) would not struggle the same way.

Jay County exploded for six runs in the second inning as 11 batters came to the plate. Jaelynn Lykins and Jozey Shimp led off the inning by reaching base on errors committed by shortstop Emily Luce and secbaseman Matilyn ond Rhoades, respectively.

With no outs and two runners on, Jay County had three freshmen and another first-year starter set to come to the plate. Carley Trinidad started things off by executing a sacrifice bunt to move the runners to second and third.

Arbuckle asked Morgan Missicano to do the same. Not only did she get the bunt down the third baseline to score the run, she also found herself safe at first base.

"I'm feeling pretty good," Missicano said. "Coach (Arbuckle) told me to hit it down the line to try and get on base. With Cali (Yates) but the bottom three of the Patriots' order took two back in the second half of inning. Trinidad the grounded out to kick off the inning before Missicano reached first on an infield single. She stole secthird base on a hit by Yates.

Yates stole second base and Missicano took off for home on the throw down. As part of a designed play, Luce cut the ball off, but her throw wasn't on target. Missicano scored on the play and Yates moved over to third base.

Bright's ground out to Luce got Yates across home.

"We have to have production all the way through the lineup to be the team we want to be," Arbuckle said. "It's great the way those girls are contributing. We don't have to count on just one through five so it's a great feeling."

The Raiders only did damage in the third inning, when an error by Missicano in right field put the first runner on base. Koger immediately drove Rhoades in with a single before back-to-back doubles by Baylee Richardson and Abi Cross tacked on two more. The final run scored on a single from Zoey Swallow.

After the third inning, Winner only allowed one base runner that never made it into scoring position.

"I just told the girls, 'there's times where you have games like this when you hit the ball solid, but it's just right at girls," Wapahani coach Jeff Masters said. "We're definitely young and have some defensive things we can n't go our way.'

The Commercial Review

Full team effort

Patriots get contributions from top to bottom of lineup

By ANDREW BALKO

The Commercial Review The Patriots dropped JCHS their first game of the season on Friday as the offense never got going.

With prom on Saturday, they didn't have any games or practices scheduled before their matchup with the Raiders.

Despite not getting back on the field, the Patriots had no trouble reviving their bats.

The Jay County High School softball team got contributions from nearly its entire lineup Monday to overwhelm the visiting Wapahani Raiders 9-4.

"It's a good bounce back from last week,' coach Doug Arbuckle said. "I was a little bit skeptical coming into a Monday game because of the weekend and on top of that we had prom Saturday.

"The girls responded well.

"Other than the one inning where they put some stuff together and got the four runs we played well defensively.

'We made some things happen with the bats and ran the bases well." See Full page 7

WINCHESTER — It hasn't been the smoothest sailing for the Patriots this season.

Slowly but surely, they are starting to return to form and roundup lower their scores.

The Jay County High School boys golf team shot a 169 at Winchester Golf Club on Monday to come out on top of a three-team meet with Monroe Central and Winchester.

The Patriots (3-1) edged past the Monroe Central Golden Bears by just three strokes, while both teams crushed the Winchester Golden Falcons who shot a 217.

best performance of the day, shooting a 39 and earning match medalist honors.

Gage Sims finished only one stroke behind DeRome with a 40.

Cody DeHoff and Liam Garringer rounded out the team score as they finished with 43 and 47 strokes, respectively.

Luke Fugiett's score of 54 out of the No. 5 spot didn't end up impacting the team score.

Patriots roll

PARKER CITY — The Jay Caleb DeRome turned in the County baseball team has fully turned things around as they lifted their record above .500 for the first time this season by beating the Monroe Central Golden Bears 13-3 in five innings on Monday.

The Patriots (6-5) didn't waste

MCHS (2-11) by scoring 11 runs of the season Monday 3-2. in the first two innings.

first inning, while Drew Schemenaur, Parker Nichols. Geesaman, Kade Sommers, Cody Rowles and Jackson Edwards plated eight in the second. The Golden Bears never came close to the Patriots' lead after the second inning.

Sommers earned the win by pitching three innings, in which he surrendered two unearned runs on four hits.

Each of the nine starters contributed offensively by either driving in a run or scoring a run themselves.

Starfires outshine JC

BERNE — The South Adams Starfires handed the Jay County girls tennis team its first Allen 4 victory.

Brenna Bailev and Maggie Ryne Goldsworthy and Joe Dillon both went into three sets Geesaman drove in runs in the in the No. 2 and 3 singles matches. Dillon pulled out for a 4-6, 6-2, 6-4 victory, while Bailey fell 6-3, 6-7 (5-7), 6-2.

Brenna Haines joined Dillon with the only other Patriot victory in the No. 1 singles, beating the Starfires' top netter 6-3. 6-4.

Meredith Dirksen and Sophia Sprunger dropped the No. 1 doubles contest 6-2, 6-4, while Lucie Henneaux and Chloe Ruiz fell 6-1, 6-1 in the No. 2 doubles match.

The junior varsity team picked up three wins on the day. Zion Beiswanger and Raylah Newton both won singles matches by scores of 6-4 and 6-3, respectively.

Courtney Harris and Audrey Muhlenkamp also pulled off a 6-

FORT RECOVERY — The Fort Recovery softball team couldn't quiet the Tri-Village Patriots in an 11-1 loss on Monday.

The Patriots (8-1) put up crooked numbers on the Indians (5-9) in the second and sixth innings with three and five runs, respectively. Six errors also played a key role in Fort Recovery's downfall.

Britney Tebbe got saddled with the loss, giving up four earned runs on six hits in three innings pitched. Jenna Homan gave up seven runs over the final three innings on six walks and five hits.

The Indians' only run came in the bottom of the second inning. Jenna Homan led off with an infield single and Cali Wendel laid down a sacrifice bunt to move Homan into scoring position. Kylie Post then delivered the two-out single to drive Homan in.
