July 4 still the goal date

Board is hopeful tile work will allow holiday opening

By BAILEY CLINE

The Commercial Review New tiles are being installed at Portland Water Park.

Once they're sealed, they'll need about three weeks to cure.

It'll take at least another three weeks for park employees to get the pool ready to open.

Portland Park Board heard an update Thursday about the pool's projected open date and awarded bids for putting new metal roofs on buildings at Weiler-Wilson Park and Runkle-Miller Field at Portland Memorial Park.

Blakely's of Indianapolis has removed the old tiles and is in the process of installing the new tiles, explained street and parks superintendent Tom Leon- tion by the end of May. hard.

He noted the company will need mostly clear weather — it can't install tiles when it's raining in order to complete the iob. (Rain is expected through the weekend, and there's another chance of showers Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.)

"It's still all dependent on the weather when they'll be done," said Leonhard.

After installation, the tiles need to cure for 21 days before water can be put in the pool. Matt Shauver of the parks department noted he'll need to begin preparing the facility following the cure time. The process includes a variety of tasks, such as pressure washing, filling the pool and testing the filtration system. He estimated the process will take at least three weeks. depending on help available and test results.

Park board's plan is still to open the pool by July 4. (The traditional opening day has been Memorial Day weekend, though that changed during the coronavirus pandemic.)

Applications also remain open for the position of pool manager. Hopes are to hire someone for the full-time posi-See Goal page 2

Celebrating sectional

The Fort Recovery High School softball team, including Jackie Homan (center), celebrate Thursday night after Emma Will scored the game-winning run in the ninth inning to give the Indians their first sectional championship since 2018. Will scored on a grounder from Sophie Pearson to end the game in which Homan tossed seven scoreless innings while allowing just one hit. For more on the game, see page 8.

Duke Energy had been working on plans to close its Gallagher Station years officially before it announced the decision in 2021

The station was a twounit, coal-fired generating facility that opened in 1958, according to Duke Energy's website. The station is located in New Albany off Jackson Street.

Submitted in 2016, the plans to close the six coal ash basins at the site were approved by the Indiana Department of EnvironCouncil (HEC), and in 2021 by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

The two groups stated that the two basins in question were subject to federal coal ash rules that the initial plan did not follow.

After Duke Energy received a letter from the EPA in January stating their opinion, the energy company made the decision to withdraw the initial closure plans and resubmit a new plan to the IDEM.

Panel subpoenas House members

WASHINGTON — The House committee scrutinizing the Jan. 6, 2021, attack on the U.S. Capitol has subpoenaed House Minority Leader Kevin McCarthy, R-California, and four other prominent conservative representatives after they refused to voluntarily comply with its requests for information.

In an all but unprecedented move to subpoena sitting members of Congress, the committee, which is expected to begin public hearings next month, is seeking to compel the testimony of McCarthy and Reps. Scott Perry of Pennsylvania, Jim Jordan of Ohio, Andy Biggs of Arizona and Mo Brooks of Alabama. All four, who are some of former President Donald Trump's biggest backers in Congress, had been asked in letters could regain control of the nas states.

"Unfortunately, you declined voluntary cooperation, and we are left with no choice but to issue you this subpoena," state the letters to the representatives informing them of the subpoenas.

The committee has debated privately for months about whether to subpoena representatives who refuse to cooperate and whether it wanted to set such a precedent — particularly given time constraints, the chance of a lengthy legal battle and the strong chance that Republicans release announcing the subpoe-

Continued from page 1 In other news, park board members Brian Ison, Glen Bryant and John McFarland, absent Shauna Runkle and Michael Brewster, awarded a $15,000 project to Goodhew's Roofing Service of Ridgeville for installing new standing seam metal roofs on the dugouts, concession stand and restroom building at Weiler-Wilson Park. They also awarded a $10,950 bid to Hatzell Bros. Standing Seam Solutions to install standing seam roofs and metal exteriors to dugouts at Runkle-Miller Field in Portland Memorial Park.

Ison noted both jobs would cost about $1,000 more than the park board has available in the fund it planned to use for the projects.

"We understand that these are big ticket, money move forward with the purchases this year," said Shauver.

Ison reminded the board it has between $18,000 and $19,000 in economic development funds left from Bitter Ridge Wind Farm. (Jay County Commissioners gave $100,000 to Portland they also allotted $100,000 to Dunkirk and $50,000 to Redkey, Salamonia, Pennville and Bryant — for what most communities are using for parks or recreational work. Portland Park Board used just under $79,000 of its amount for the new tiles at Portland Water Park.) He added the board should reserve some of those remaining funds in case more is needed for the pool as well as for matching funds to pursue a grant through The Portland Foundation.

Park board decided to items. So we know this is projects and supply the about the extent of our big remaining roughly $1,100 using its economic development monies.

In other business, park board:

•Were reminded there are security cameras at Haynes Park. Shauver noted on April 25 vandals removed paper towels from the dispenser in the restrooms and put them into the fireplace at the center pavilion. The action left large pieces of ash around the area. A cigarette was also found jammed in the towel dispenser, which was ripped off the wall. Police found the minor responsible and have banned them from the parks for two months.

•Heard Ison has received one bid at $60,000 from CXT Buildings for a restroom building to be constructed at Runkle-Miller Field. He noted he'll pursue one or two more bids and will be applying for a grant through The Portland Foundation for the project.

•Gave permission to Shauver to ask Dave Weesner to roll the Pee Wee Football field at least two times for roughly $350. Chet Franks of the pee wee football program explained the field was recently used by community members while wet, causing large ruts in the ground. Shauver agreed to put up signs that say not to play on the field when it is wet.

 Learned a deteriorating yellow shed at Runkle-Miller Park will be removed next week, before the Portland Rockets' home opener May 22.

•Discussed creating liability forms for organized sports and recreational activity organizations at the parks. The board will likely take action on the matter at its next meeting June 7.

Dislike of brother-in-law finally comes to light

Family

DEAR ABBY: My sister and I have always been close. She's married to a man I have always thought is domineering and arrogant. I also suspect that he's emotionally abusive from things she has confided over the years. These include days of the silent treatment, refusing to celebrate her birthday because he doesn't believe in it and discouraging her from taking a job she was interested in. He refuses to go to counseling and says whatever problems there are between them are her fault. I hold my tongue and try to tolerate him because she has chosen to stay with him.

He recently participated in a marathon and was connected to us and many others through social media so we could follow the entire two-day event from start to finish. After a day of constant "dinging" on my phone, I found his need for attention over the top and stopped following. My sister was very upset about it. She said she was embarrassed and hurt. When she asked why I stopped, I told her the truth.

Now our relationship is damaged. I apologized and tried to hostage for two days because from him at all, despite seeing smooth things over, but she's now fully aware of my true feelings about him after seeing and hearing how he has treated her over the years. Should I have "kept the peace," as my dear departed mother always said, and continued to keep my mouth shut, or should I have been honest about my feelings? - PROTECTIVE OF SIS

PROTECTIVE: DEAR Because you say you and your sister are close, I am surprised you held your tongue about her husband's behavior for so long. You did nothing wrong by tuning out of the marathon your brother-in-law's ego needed bolstering. You were honest with your sister and, in my opinion, did nothing that requires an apology.

DEAR ABBY: My partner and I have been in a long-distance relationship for about a year. After I did some casual social media stalking, I learned he still lives with his ex-boyfriend, in spite of the fact that he continually complains to me about his "roommate," whom he never refers to by name. On top of that, we made a commitment over the last year to phone each other at least once updates. You should not have a day. For the past three weeks, been expected to be held there are times I haven't heard him active on social media (especially on weekends). It's to a point where I stay awake until all hours, hoping to hear from him. Should I approach him about this, or is this just the end to the "hon-eymoon phase"? — WAITING BY THE PHÔNE IN CANADA

DEAR WAITING: Not only is it the end of the "honeymoon phase," but it may also be the beginning of the end of this romance because it appears your "partner" isn't as eager to contact you as you are to hear from him. Long-distance relationships can be challenging, and you may be happier if you couple up with somebody local.

Legion riders appreciate support

To the editor:

Earlier this year, in February, an event was put on here in Portland at Jay Community Center.

The event was in support of helping out a young lady who was diagnosed with cancer.

It was very overwhelming the response and support this young lady was given by this communi-ty during the event.

The event had a basketball tournament, cornhole tournament, free-throw contest, 50/50 raffle, a four-wheeler raffle and a bounce house.

A very special thank you to Jay Community Center for the use of their wonderful center, Post 211 American Legion Riders for heading this wonderful event up.

Wordle cult casts its spell

By BUD HERRON (Columbus) The Republic

My wife, Ann, Wordles. I am not exactly sure what Wordle is, but she takes part in its rituals every morning as soon as she wakes up. Best I can figure, it is some sort of a cult.

She evidently is part of at least two Wordle covens. Converts of each coven communicate via text on their cell phones. Her phone begins beeping with incoming Wordle traffic as early as 5 a.m. some days. The last of these texts sometimes doesn't beep in until nightfall.

All the while these texts are coming in, Ann focuses on a tiny grid on her cell phone — five squares wide and six squares deep. She frantically places letters in the squares while other members of her covens rush to fill out theirs and transmit the results to her. (Whatever she is doing, the cult is not of Christian origin, judging from the blue expletives she sometimes releases in the process.)

Several times she has lion in the United States tried to recruit me to the alone. cult, but I have resisted.

Such growth indicates Wordle is quickly moving from the world of cults into the realm of mainstream organized religion. Whether it will continue to flourish is anyone's guess. Other cults have

When I was young, I couldn't wait for the grass to grow so I could take my lawn mower out and cut some of my neighbors' yards. The days it snowed were great opportunities for me to get out my shovel, walk around the neighborhood and seek out members in the community who wanted their snow removed. A few of my friends, on occasion, and I would easily make $25 to $30 a day after school. What I realized was that it wasn't just the money that really benefited me; it also was the relationships I developed with my neighbors, many of whom were either middle-aged or elderly. Nowadays, in far too many communities, summers and winters come and go, and we rarely see our youth canvassing the neighborhoods, asking to cut grass, rake leaves or remove snow. Unfortunately, in many cases, these are lost opportunities for our youths and senior citizens to get These unrealized acquainted. moments affect far too many communities and may speak to why crime is so rampant in some places. What is causing this estrangement? Is it fear? Or is it a lack of understanding? Data from Statista Research shows that people between the ages of 20 to 24 are more likely to commit a violent crime, such as homicide, than any other age group. Those 17 to 19 represent the third largest group committing these acts. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recorded its highest number of gun-related deaths in 2020. We read about acts of violence being committed by youths that we never thought possible. People are now more guarded and worried about their safety. If a young person shows ognize that shared experiences between our youths and the elderly result in the development of better relationships. So much is made about hiring more police officers and finding social programs that work. But some of the answers can come from within the community. Residents know who lives in isolation; they know the young people who would like to do odd jobs; they know what the needs are in the community. They can help bridge the gap better than others. The need is greater now than ever before. AARP data shows that the number of older Black adults will nearly triple, and the number of older Hispanic adults will quintuple over the next few decades. That means many communities will have older residents living alone and often in isolation. If efforts are not made to mitigate the fear that many feel, the mistrust will worsen. Poor relationships among residents opens the door for more crime. Too many of our senior citizens are becoming invisible to the young. They are being overlooked and devalued in far too many communities. Yet what they have to contribute is priceless. Communities should bring the generations together. Youths bring life while the elderly bring wisdom. When they work together, they can achieve harmony. Coretta Scott King once said: "The greatness of a community is most accurately measured by the compassionate actions of its members." When there is caring and understanding among citizens, crime does not have place to roam.

Following the first meeting of our two-person exercise coven, my lower back locked up and I had to crawl up the stairs to our bedroom proof enough for me that Fonda was the communist traitor rightwing critics claimed her to be. I am not about to be enticed into another cult.

However, judging by the number of people I now know to be embracing this cult, the number of Wordle converts is growing faster than COVID-19. No vaccine can prevent it and masking is of no use.

Christianity took more than 300 years to become the official religion of the Roman Empire. According to statistics posted on the internet, Wordle appeared in October 2021 and by Nov. 1 had 90 converts.

By the end of December, 300,000 people had joined the cult. Another 1.7 million people worldwide were Wordling by Jan. 8.

Today, few people under 50 even remember Hulahoopism, or Beaniebabyism, or Petrockism.

Rubikscubeism still has a few followers, but also has fallen back from religion status to being a mere cult — as indicated by the scarcity of people on the street wearing gold Rubik's Cubes on chains around their necks.

Meanwhile, the Wordle beeping goes on. Where it will lead us is anyone's guess. While I refuse to join the cult, I will not actively oppose it or make any effort to rescue Ann from its clutches.

I simply request that her fellow cult members don't Wordle with her before about 8 a.m. The cell phone beeping is disturbing my sleep.

the grass or shovel the snow, it's conceivable that the young person will receive a resounding "no.

The pandemic exacerbated this schism as people had to stay in their homes for the sake of safety. If the elderly and the young are not communicating and having those shared experiences, how do we bridge the gap? How do we bring the generations together? How do we build trust between Generation Z and the baby boomers?

The death toll of COVID-19 is staggering. But one thing that is getting overlooked is the pandemic's social and psychological impact on the elderly. According to the National Institute of Mental Health, an estimated 20% of U.S. adults live with a mental illness. Social isolation makes this issue worse, especially for the elderly.

When race is considered, Black and Hispanic people are overrepresented when it comes to mental health conditions such as anxiety and depression.

These conditions make it more challenging for generations to connect and communicate, even among family members, let alone others who are not a part of a family. To bring calm to communities that are dealing with high rates of crime, a concerted effort must be made to bring the generations together to combat fear, mistrust and miscommunication.

Plans

Continued from page 1 Not all of the basins still hold water, including the North Ash Basin and the Primary Pond Ash Fill. Because they do not water impound and haven't in a long time, Duke Energy spokesperson Angeline Protogere said they did not believe they were subject to the federal coal ash rules.

While Protogere said that they respectfully disagree that the two basins are subject to these rules, they are complying with the EPA in the interest of closing the plant in a timely manner.

In the letter the EPA stated that it has a different interpretation of what is considered to be a Coal Combustion Residuals (CCR) surface impoundment. CCR refers to coal ash.

"The definition of a CCR surface impoundment does not require that the unity prevent groundwater from flowing through the unit, but merely requires that the unit be 'designed to hold an accumulation of CCR and liquid," the EPA letter states.

Groundwater simply refers to the water underneath Earth's surface. The U.S. Geological Survey reported that groundwater is the source of about 37% of the water that county and city water departments use to supply households and businesses.

In 2020, the Hoosier Environmental Council (HEC) filed an administrative appeal, saying that IDEM should not have approved the original closure plans.

The Office of Environmental Adjudication rejected HEC's claims and approved the plan, according to Duke Énergy's notice of withdrawal sent to IDEM. HEC filed a petition, and the parties are awaiting a hearing.

The EPA's letter stated that Duke Energy will need to implement engineering measures to remove groundwater from the unit before installing the final cover system; Duke Energy will also need to ensure that the basins are closed in a manner that will minimize infiltration of liquids and release of CCR to the max-num extent feasible. The new plan that Duke loss, going the distance the Patriots in the six-num extent feasible. imum extent feasible. Energy is looking to implement is not a foreign concept. In fact, the same plan was already in place for the other four basins at the Gallagher site.

Sportsmanship winners

Jay County Robotics team 1193B won the Sportsmanship Award at the VEX World Championships held Sunday through Tuesday in Dallas. The team, which is made up of Callie Houck, Madi Paxson, Jacob Kellog, Joseph Boggs, Max Klopfenstein and Brennan Chrisman, finished 20th in qualifications, earning it a spot in the finals. It marked the first time a middle school team from Jay County had advanced to the finals.

Champions

Continued from page 8 Pearson's bouncer to Demange came on an 0-1 count and the shortstop never had a chance to gun down the speedy Will as she zipped home with the game-winning run. "It was a little bit stressful," said Pearson. "I was thinking, should I bunt here, should I not? But I just knew that a powerful swing would do just as much as a bunt. And then nothing felt better than getting (Will) across home plate.³

The Indians trailed 1-0 through five and a half innings before Guggenbiller nearly tied the game in a single swing, blasting an Ashlyn Bohman pitch to center field to lead off the bottom of the sixth inning. But it hit the fence about a foot and a half from the top, leaving her with an extremely long single.

No matter. Guggenbiller stole second base, sliding wide to the outfield side of the bag to slip behind Damange's tag. And when she took third on a delayed steal, the throw from catcher Paige Bruggeman sailed high and just over third baseman Aliyah Arling's glove. The error allowed Guggenbiller to hustle across the plate with the game-tying run.

"I was trying to delay, but she ended up catching across her body," said Guggenbiller. "So I went, because across your body you can't really throw very well."

FRHS coach Ryan Thien noted that during the early part of the season he had been using a courtesy runner for his catcher, but Guggenbiller had urged him to let her run.

Taking that advice paid off.

"She is the best, smartest base runner we probably have on the team," Thien said.

The Flyers (7-11) had taken the lead in the third inning when Cameron Swain hit a two-out single to left field, stole second base, took third on a passed ball and scored on an RBI single to center from Demange. They likely would have added another run, but FRHS center fielder Kensey Gaerke made a running catch to take away a hit from Allison Dirksen to end the inning.

The grab started a run of 14 straight outs as Pearson sat down Marion Local in the fourth inning and then Jackie Homan, who tossed the first two innings, returned to retire the side in order in the fifth, sixth and seventh. The Flyers' only baserunner over the final six innings came on a oneout error in the eighth.

"When we played them in the regular season, Homan kept us off balance too," said Marion Local coach Mindy Puthoff of the senior who earned the win as she went seven scoreless innings while giving up just one hit. "So whatever she does, keep doing it. They were playing solid defense behind her and we just couldn't quite get that second or third hit to score more runs.

Fort Recovery will play sixthranked and top-seeded Minster in the first of two district semifinal games at 4 p.m. Tuesday. The Wildclobbered 11th-seeded cats Spencerville 15-1 in their sectional championship game Thursday.

No. 10 seed New Bremen, which upset second-seeded Crestview 4-2 Thursday, and third-seeded Lincolnview will follow in the other district semifinal. The district championship game is slated for 5 p.m. May 20.

CHAMPIONS IN 9 Pearson grounder brings Will home with game-winning run to give Fort Recovery the sectional title in extra-inning thriller he Commercial Review FORT RECOVERY - Emma Will was standing on third base for the third time.

By RAY COONEY

She was stranded there in the fifth inning.

She was stranded there again as the potential game-winning run in the seventh.

With one out in the bottom of the ninth, she was again 60 feet away from delivering the Indians a sectional title.

Sophie Pearson provided her ticket home.

Pearson's ground ball to shortstop Olivia Damange was enough to get Will across the plate and give the Fort Recovery High School softball team a 2-1 victory over the Marion Local Flyers in Thursday's Division IV sectional championship game. "Awesome," said Pearson. "I've never felt anything better."

It was the second win for the Indians over Marion Local this season following a 6-5 victory April 19 and sends them to the district tournament at Wapakoneta.

Fort Recovery's last sectional title came when it beat Perry 10-2 in 2018. Since then, it had lost 8-6 to Marion Local in the 2019 final, had the 2020 season canceled because of the coronavirus pandemic and fell 9-2 to Lincolnview in last season's championship game.

"It's crazy," said junior Maddie Guggenbiller, who scored the game-tying run in the sixth inning. "We as a Fort Recovery softball team, I think that we've kept on improving. But in years past we've had a hard time struggling to get (the sectional title).

'Just to see this win tonight has shown that the growth that we've had is incredible. And I think that our team has just grown so close to each other that we know that we each are capable of pulling out this win. So we have trust. I think that's a big part of why we won this today."

Will on base by way of an error to lead off the ninth inning it was nothing new. They had runners on base in every inning, but struggled to get them around to score. They stranded 11 runners bases loaded in the second inning.

But Chloey Grisez made sure Will would keep moving, laying down a sacrifice bunt on the right side of the infield. As Will When the Indians (13-7) got in total, including leaving the reached second base she saw no one was covering third and scampered there to put herself in position to end the game on a deep fly ball, a squeeze bunt or, as it turned out, a well-placed grounder.

Golfers 2nd at WVGC GENEVA — The Patriots got a good look at their conference rivals Thursday.

They will need to find a way to shave some strokes to have a shot at the league title next weekend.

Jay County High School's boys golf team finished second in a four-team Allen County Athletic Conference event at Wabash Valley Golf Club, scoring 180 to trail Heritage by 13 strokes.

South Adams was five behind JCHS while Woodlan was last with a 203. (All of those squads, along with Adams Central, Southern Wells and Bluffton, will meet again May 21 in the ACAC Tournament at Celina Lynx.)

Caleb DeRome paced Jay County, recording three consecutive pars in the middle of his round. He finished at 42, which is 6 over par.

Seth Roop of Heritage was the medalist with a 39.

Brock DeHoff followed DeRome with a 44, including a birdie on the 410-yard, par-4 fifth hole. Kyle Sanders and Liam Garringer recorded matching 47s to round out the team score, and Gage Sims shot 58.

Hits hard to find

FORT RECOVERY — Wapakoneta shut down Fort Recovery's baseball team Thursday, handing it a 12-0 defeat in five innings.

The visitors took control with a five-run fifth inning. They scored once in the fourth and six times in the fifth as they finished the game early.

Wyatt Bihn took the loss as he gave up five runs on three hits and three walks in 11/3 innings.

Cale Rammel recorded the only hit for the Tribe, which fell to 10-8 on the season.

Fort Recovery will seek to rebound tonight when it makes a visit to Franklin Monroe.
